The leading advocate of the confederation has been the Hon. D'Arcy McGhee, of Quebec, who is to occupy a conspicuous po-sition in the cabinet. He has already announced himself in favor of incurring a great debt, in imitation of the United States and other big nations, for the erection of public works. He proposes also the creation of a large standing army-the object of which may be to guard the Southern frontier against Fenian raids. A jealousy and suspicion of the United States is clearly shown already.

The young Confederacy is anxious to put on the airs of big nations, and carry out some lofty ideas. Like a boy with his first The Court House Commissioners reported | wooden horse, they are over anxious for the the letting out of the contract for building sport and it is quite likely that on the first opportunity they will inquire if they are not in somebody's way.
